Election/Restrictions

1. Applicant's election of Species II, figure 2 in Paper No. 7 is acknowledged.

Because applicant did not distinctly and specifically point out the supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election has been treated as an election without traverse (MPEP § 818.03(a)).

2. Claims 5-17, and 24-28 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected species, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in Paper No. 7.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1, 2, 4, 18-23, and 29-41 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Oakley (4864740) in view of Ogden (5388349).

Oakley shows an insert comprising a nonwoven fabric layer (4), a nonslip material layer (12), an ingredient layer (10), bonding the layers together (column 4 lines 5-20), and treating the top fabric layer (column 3 lines 14-16) substantially as claimed except for the exact coefficient of friction for the top nonwoven layer. Ogden teaches adjusting the coefficient of friction of the top surface of an insert to above 0.5 (see column 11 lines 50-57) to provide less sliding movement of a wearers sock to provide an enhanced feeling of control. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to make the top have a coefficient of friction of between 0.52 and 0.82 which is above 0.5 as suggested by Ogden, since it has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the art. In re Aller, 105 USPQ 233. It would have been obvious to provide the top layer with a coefficient of friction of above 0.5 as taught by Ogden in the insert of Oakley to increase the feeling of control of the footwear.

In reference to claims 19, 35, 38, and 40 a comparison of the recited process with the prior art processes does NOT serve to resolve the issue concerning patentability of the product. In re Fessman, 489 F2d 742, 180 U.S.P.Q. 324 (CCPA 1974). Whether a product is patentable depends on whether it is known in the art or it is obvious, and is not governed by whether the process by which it is made is patentable. In re Klug, 333 F2d 905, 142 U.S.P.Q. 161 (CCPA 1964). In an ex parte case, product-by-process claims are not construed as being limited to the product formed by the specific process recited. In re Hirao et al., 535 F2d 67, 190 U.S.P.Q. 15, see footnote 3 (CCPA 1976).

In reference to claims 22, 32, and 33, Oakley suggests the use of cohesive coatings for the non slip layer see column 3 lines 60-64.

In reference to claims 34, 37, and 41 Oakley as modified above discloses the claimed invention except for the exact amount of film. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to apply the cohesive coating as a film in the amount of between 1 and 300 (or between 5 and 250) milligrams per square inch, since it has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the art. In re Aller, 105 USPQ 233.

In reference to claims 36, and 39, the exact pattern of the cohesive coating, the specific pattern/method of extrusion/lamination appear to have no importance as Oakley does not specify any required pattern. It would have been obvious to use any known pattern/method of extrusion including melt-blown, vertical spiral, horizontal spiral, and/or vertical/horizontal comb slot-coat. The presence of claims 36 and 39 is evidence that the invention is indifferent, i.e. there is no criticality, to the specific one of the conventional patterns/methods.

5. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the references as applied to claims 1, 2, 4, 18-23, and 29-41 above, and further in view of Watt (4808458).

Oakley as modified above shows an insert substantially as claimed except for the exact top nonwoven layer. It is extremely well known and conventional to use suede-like materials for top layers of inserts. Watt teaches forming a suede-like material which has vertically disposed fibers (18). It would have been obvious to use a material with vertically disposed fibers as taught by Watt for the nonwoven layer of the insert of Oakley as modified above to provide a soft and comfortable feel.
